Grammar for the Exam

Objective: I can use the 7 grammar topics of my exam accurately in Part 2 and in my writing.

G.14.3 Past time (past continuous)

Rule

- Form: was/were + verb-ing (I was playing, they were studying).
- Use it for an action in progress at a past moment.
- Use it with the past simple: a long action was in progress when a short action interrupted it.
- Use while with the past continuous and when with the past simple.

نستخدم الماضي المستمر للحدث الذي كان جاريًا في لحظة معينة في الماضي.

Examples

- At eight o'clock, we were waiting for the bus.
- I was fixing my laptop when the power went off.
- While my brother was packing his bag, I called the taxi.
- They weren't watching the match because the storm cut the signal.

Common mistakes

✗ I was play football when it rained. ✓ I was playing football when it rained.
✗ While we waited, the lights went out. ✓ While we were waiting, the lights went out.
✗ She were studying at nine. ✓ She was studying at nine.

G.4.1 Defining relative clauses

Rule

- Use who or that for people: the boy who lives next door.
- Use which or that for things: the app which helps me learn.
- Use where for places and whose for possession.
- A defining clause gives necessary information, so we do not use commas.

جملة الصلة المحددة تعطي معلومة ضرورية، ولا نضع قبلها فاصلة.

Examples

- The coach who trains our team is from Egypt.
- I lost the watch that my uncle gave me.
- This is the stadium where we played the final.
- He is the player whose goal won the cup.

Common mistakes

✗ The man which fixed my laptop is kind. ✓ The man who fixed my laptop is kind.

✗ That is the city where I visited last year. ✓ That is the city which I visited last year.

Reading and Gap-fill Skills

Objective: I can use reading strategies to answer multiple-choice questions quickly and accurately.

5 steps for every reading part

1	2	3	4	5
Read the title and look at any pictures to predict the topic.	Skim the text quickly for the main idea of each paragraph.	Read the questions and underline the key words.	Scan the text for the key words, then read around them carefully.	Check all three options and choose the one that matches the text exactly.

Gap-fill parts (Part 1 and Part 2): 5 gaps, 2 marks each

- Read the whole text first to understand the topic, then look at the words before and after each gap.
- Decide the word type needed (noun, verb, adjective) and test each option in the sentence.
- Cross out the wrong options, read the finished text again, and check it makes sense.

How the reading marks are shared

Part 3A · 24 marks · 8 questions × 3 marks

Specific information 4×3=12 · Details 2×3=6 · Inference 1×3=3 · Overall meaning 1×3=3

Part 3B · 16 marks · 8 questions × 2 marks

Details 4×2=8 · Inference 1×2=2 · Connection 1×2=2 · Prediction 1×2=2 · Overall meaning 1×2=2

Question types and what to do

Detail	Find the key words in the question, locate them in the text and read the sentences around them; wrong options often change one small fact.
Inference	Use the sentences around the unknown word and its word parts (prefix, suffix) to guess the meaning, then test it in the sentence.
Overall	Choose the option that covers the whole text, not just one detail; check the title and each paragraph's first sentence.
Connection	Link the text to your own experience or to something you know, and choose the idea that fits the writer's message.

Writing Skills

Objective: I can write a clear summary and a well-organised reply or opinion text that earns top marks.

1.1 Summary: 15 marks · 1.2 Opinion text: 25 marks

How you are marked

Each criterion is scored from 1 to 5 using the school rubric.

Task completion	5 — Answer every prompt with relevant, developed ideas.
Structure	5 — Paragraphs, topic sentences, correct text type, linking words.
Grammar	5 — A range of simple and complex sentences, mostly accurate.
Vocabulary	5 — Topic words and varied expressions.
Spelling and punctuation	5 — Correct spelling, capitals, commas, apostrophes.

Task 1.1: 3–4 sentences

1. Read the text carefully and underline the key idea in each paragraph.
2. Write one sentence for each main idea, using your own words.
3. Use synonyms and change the sentence structure; do not copy phrases.
4. Write 3-4 sentences and check spelling and punctuation.

Task 1.2: at least 150 words

1. Read the question and the three prompts; underline the key words.
2. Plan: write your opinion and one idea for each prompt in a quick note.
3. Paragraph 1: introduce the topic and give your opinion clearly.
4. Paragraphs 2 and 3: answer each prompt with a topic sentence, a reason and an example; use linkers.
5. Write a short conclusion, then check grammar, spelling and that you wrote at least 150 words.

A Hot Summer in Abu Dhabi

Summer in Abu Dhabi is long and hot, and my uncle Yaqoub, who works at a weather station, says the _____(1)_____ in the air is the hardest part. When the air is full of water, sweat cannot dry, so even a short walk feels tiring. Last Tuesday the temperature reached forty-nine degrees, and the car park was too hot to walk across. Yaqoub explained that dark roofs _____(2)_____ the sun's heat, while white ones send most of it back into the sky, so many new buildings are painted white. He also warned us that staying outside at midday can be _____(3)_____, especially for children and older people. Workers on building sites now have a rest every hour, and they drink plenty of water. Last summer a desert _____(4)_____ team helped two hikers who were lost without water. They were tired but safe. I always wear a loose cotton _____(5)_____ in July, because it feels cool and lets my skin breathe. Next week our class will make a poster about staying safe in the heat.

The Sharing Shed

In a quiet district of Al Ain, residents have started something unusual: a sharing shed. It is a small building behind the community centre, and it opens every Saturday from nine o'clock until noon. Inside, shelves hold more than two hundred items, including ladders, drills, camping chairs, board games and a large pot for cooking for big families.

The idea came from a retired engineer, Mr Hamdan, who noticed that most households own tools they use only a few times a year. "A drill is used for about ten minutes in its whole life," he says, "yet every family buys one." In 2023 he asked forty neighbours to donate things they no longer needed, and the shed was born.

To borrow something, a person simply writes his name in a notebook and returns the item within one week. There is no fee, but borrowers must clean everything before they bring it back. If an item breaks, volunteers repair it in a monthly workshop, where young people can learn practical skills from the older members.

The shed has brought other benefits. Neighbours who once never spoke now chat while they wait in the queue, and several teenagers have found part-time work helping elderly residents carry heavy things. Last year the shed even saved the community money: the members calculated that families spent about 30,000 dirhams less on new equipment.

Not everyone was convinced at first. Some people worried that borrowed things would be lost or damaged. However, only three items have disappeared in two years, so the worries seem to have been exaggerated. Today, groups in two other cities are copying the project.

1. When is the sharing shed open?

(A) Every Saturday morning
(B) Every Friday afternoon
(C) Every day after school

2. Who had the idea for the shed?

(A) A group of teenagers
(B) A retired engineer
(C) A school teacher

Under the Weather

The expression 'under the weather' usually describes someone who feels slightly ill, but scientists increasingly suggest that the phrase is more literal than most people realise. Changes in temperature, humidity and sunlight can all affect the human body in measurable ways.

Consider sunlight first. In northern countries, where winter days are short, many people experience a condition known as seasonal depression. Reduced daylight alters the production of certain chemicals in the brain, which can leave sufferers exhausted and unmotivated. Doctors often recommend spending time outdoors at midday, even when the sky is grey, because natural light is far stronger than any lamp indoors.

Heat creates different problems. When the temperature rises, the body sweats to cool itself, and unless the lost water is replaced, dehydration can develop rapidly. Its early signs, such as headaches and dizziness, are frequently mistaken for ordinary tiredness, so people ignore them until the situation becomes serious. In the Gulf, where summer temperatures regularly exceed forty-five degrees, schools and employers therefore insist on regular water breaks and shaded rest areas.

Pressure changes may also play a part. Many people with migraines report that their symptoms worsen shortly before a storm, and researchers suspect that falling air pressure affects the blood vessels in the head. The evidence is still inconclusive, however, which means that individual experience varies considerably.

None of this suggests that weather alone makes us ill. Rather, it can amplify existing weaknesses. Those who sleep well, eat sensibly and stay hydrated are better prepared to cope with sudden changes, whatever the forecast says.

1. Why do some people in northern countries feel low in winter?

(A) They spend too much time indoors with friends
(B) Less daylight changes chemicals in the brain
(C) The cold air damages their blood vessels

2. Why do doctors suggest going outside at midday even when it is cloudy?

(A) Natural light is much stronger than indoor lamps
(B) Cloudy weather reduces headaches
(C) The air outside is always cooler

From: Yousef To: Saeed
Subject: Life in my new flat

Hi Saeed,

How are you? I hope your exams went well. Sorry for the late reply, but I have been very busy since I moved into my new flat in Al Ain.

I'm sharing it with three other students from my engineering course. At first I was nervous, because I had never lived with anyone except my family. Now I think it was the right decision. We split the rent, so each of us pays only 900 dirhams a month, and we cook together on Sundays. Last week we made a timetable for cleaning the kitchen because the dishes were piling up.

Of course, there are some problems. One roommate stays awake until three in the morning, and the noise makes it hard for me to sleep. I also miss the privacy of my old bedroom.

Next year you will probably need to choose between living at home and sharing a flat. In your opinion, which is better? Please write soon and tell me what you think.

Best wishes, Yousef

Summer in Abu Dhabi is long and hot, and my uncle Yaqoub, who works at a weather station, says the (1) humidity in the air is the hardest part. When the air is full of water, sweat cannot dry, so even a short walk feels tiring. Last Tuesday the temperature reached forty-nine degrees, and the car park was too hot to walk across. Yaqoub explained that dark roofs (2) absorb the sun's heat, while white ones send most of it back into the sky, so many new buildings are painted white. He also warned us that staying outside at midday can be (3) hazardous, especially for children and older people. Workers on building sites now have a rest every hour, and they drink plenty of water. Last summer a desert (4) rescue team helped two hikers who were lost without water. They were tired but safe. I always wear a loose cotton (5) fabric in July, because it feels cool and lets my skin breathe. Next week our class will make a poster about staying safe in the heat.

1	B	Humidity is the amount of water in the air, which stops sweat from drying.
2	A	Dark roofs absorb (take in) heat, while white ones send it back.
3	C	Hazardous means dangerous, which fits the warning about the midday sun.
4	B	A rescue team saves people who are in danger or lost.
5	A	Cotton is a fabric (cloth) that people wear.

Text: “Life in my new flat” from Yousef

Task 1.1 model (15 marks)

Yousef is writing to tell Saeed about sharing a flat with three students in Al Ain. He thinks it was a good decision because they split the rent and cook together, but there are a few problems: one roommate stays up late and Yousef misses his privacy. Finally, he asks Saeed whether living at home or sharing a flat is better.

Task 1.2 model (25 marks)

In my opinion, university students should share a flat, because it teaches them to be independent. Although living alone can be quiet and comfortable, sharing gives young people many chances to learn useful skills.

First of all, sharing a flat is cheaper and more social. If four students share the rent, each one pays much less, so they can spend their money on books instead of bills. Moreover, a roommate can become a close friend, for example, someone who helps you to revise before a difficult exam.

However, shared living can also cause problems. Students may disagree about noise, cleaning or privacy. Nevertheless, these problems are easy to solve if everyone follows the same rules. For instance, the flatmates can write a weekly schedule for cooking and cleaning, and they can agree on quiet hours at night.

To sum up, I believe that sharing a flat is a valuable experience. Students who learn to cooperate and listen will cope better with difficulties at work in the future.

Why this earns top marks

- It answers all three prompts (task completion).
- Each paragraph has a topic sentence, then reasons or examples (structure).
- It uses linking words and a range of complex sentences (grammar).
- It uses topic vocabulary from the unit (vocabulary).
- Spelling and punctuation are correct (spelling and punctuation).

A Bike for Everyone

Sharing is not only for toys and books. In a neighbourhood in Sharjah, a bicycle-sharing scheme has changed the way hundreds of people travel to school and work. The scheme began in January 2024, when a science teacher named Mr Salem noticed how many students arrived late because of the traffic around the school gates.

At first there were only twenty-five bicycles, which parents and local shops had donated. They were kept at four small stations: outside the school, the community library, the clinic and the bus stop. Today there are more than ninety bicycles and nine stations. Anyone over twelve can use a bike by scanning a code on a mobile phone. The first thirty minutes are free, and after that each extra half hour costs two dirhams.

The scheme has strict safety rules. Every rider must wear a helmet, and bikes must be returned to a station before nine o'clock in the evening. Volunteers from a local university check the brakes and lights every Sunday, and any broken bicycle is taken out of use immediately.

The results have been impressive. According to a survey, car journeys around the school have fallen by almost a fifth, and many students say they arrive more energetic and ready to learn. Several riders have also made new friends, since a group meets every Friday for a relaxed ride along the canal.

Mr Salem is delighted, but he admits that the scheme still faces one challenge: bicycles are sometimes left in the wrong places. Even so, he hopes that other neighbourhoods will soon follow his example.

1. When did the bicycle scheme begin?

(A) In January 2024
(B) In September 2023
(C) In December 2025

2. Why did Mr Salem start the scheme?

(A) Many students were arriving late because of traffic
(B) The school wanted to sell bicycles
(C) The local shops needed more customers

3. What does 'donated' mean in paragraph 2?

(A) Sold at a low price
(B) Lent for a short time

Dressed for the Heat

For centuries, people in desert regions have worn loose, light-coloured robes, and modern science largely confirms that this tradition is wise. The human body works best at roughly thirty-seven degrees, and anything that disrupts this balance can threaten health.

When the surrounding temperature climbs above the temperature of the skin, the body can no longer lose heat by simply radiating it outwards. Instead, it relies almost entirely on sweat evaporating from the skin. Tight or dark clothes interfere with this process: dark fabrics absorb more sunlight, while synthetic textiles trap moisture and prevent it from evaporating. Loose cotton, by contrast, allows air to circulate around the body.

Humidity complicates matters further. On a coastal day when the air is already saturated with water vapour, sweat evaporates slowly, so the body struggles to cool down even though the thermometer shows a lower figure. Doctors therefore warn that a humid thirty-eight degrees can be more dangerous than a dry forty-two. Heat exhaustion, whose symptoms include heavy sweating, nausea and pale, cold skin, can progress to heat stroke if the victim is not moved into the shade and cooled promptly. A person who stops sweating and becomes confused needs an ambulance without delay.

Prevention is far simpler than treatment. Experts advise drinking water regularly rather than waiting until thirst appears, avoiding strenuous exercise between eleven and three, and checking on elderly neighbours, who often notice heat less acutely than younger people. Perhaps the most striking lesson is that ancient habits and modern research frequently arrive at the same conclusion.

1. Why is loose cotton a good choice in hot weather?

(A) It keeps the body at exactly thirty-seven degrees
(B) It lets air move around the skin
(C) It absorbs more sunlight

2. What does 'saturated' mean in paragraph 3?

(A) Slightly dry
(B) Heated by the sun
(C) Completely full

Lesson Objectives

3. Why can a humid thirty-eight degrees be more dangerous than a dry forty-two?

(A) Humid air is always hotter
(B) Sweat evaporates slowly, so the body cools down less well
(C) Doctors measure the temperature differently

4. What should be done for someone with heat exhaustion?

(A) Move them into the shade and cool them quickly
(B) Give them hot tea and a blanket
(C) Let them keep exercising slowly

5. Why does the writer suggest checking on elderly neighbours?

(A) They usually drink too much water
(B) They refuse to wear loose clothes
(C) They may not notice the heat as much as others

6. Which advice would the writer most likely give to a family planning a beach picnic in August?

(A) Arrive at one o'clock to enjoy the strongest sun
(B) Go in the early morning or evening and take plenty of water
(C) Wear dark synthetic clothes to stay warm

7. Which example best matches the writer's final point?

(A) A grandfather tells a boy to rest at midday, and doctors now give the same advice
(B) A boy forgets to take water to a football match
(C) A shop sells new summer clothes at a discount

8. What is the main idea of the text?

(A) Staying healthy in extreme heat depends on understanding how the body cools itself
(B) Desert people should stop wearing traditional clothes
(C) Humid weather is always safe

Subject: My winter trip to Jebel Jais

Hi Jasim,

How are you? Sorry I haven't written since the holidays. I want to tell you about the best week of my winter break.

Last January my family drove to Jebel Jais in Ras Al Khaimah. It was only two degrees at the top, and I wore my first proper coat! We were walking along the mountain road when thick fog suddenly covered everything. My father said we had to stay together and drive slowly, so we waited at a viewpoint and drank hot tea until the sky cleared. After that, the view was amazing.

Honestly, I think winter is the best season in the UAE, because you can spend all day outside without feeling exhausted. In summer, however, we must stay indoors from noon until five, because the afternoon heat is simply too strong for any outdoor game.

What about you? Which season do you prefer, and why? Write back soon and tell me about your favourite season.

Best wishes, Mansour

Review Exam 2: Answer Key and Model Answers

Mark your paper. Green = correct answer. Read each reason. Then compare your writing with the model.

Part 1 · Vocabulary (2 marks each)

On the first day at university in Al Ain, Hazza carried two heavy bags into room 214 and met his (1) roommate, a quiet boy from Fujairah called Nasser. They shared one small room, so they agreed on simple rules for sleeping, studying and visitors. Hazza soon learned that university life needs good planning. Every project has a (2) deadline, and a late submission loses marks, so he wrote each date on a big calendar. He also had to follow campus (3) regulations, such as no cooking in the rooms and no loud music after ten o'clock. At first he felt lonely, but the student (4) community organised a welcome evening with games and food, and he met people from many countries. Some of them are now his closest friends. When his first exam came, Hazza was nervous, but he learned how to (5) manage his time by making a weekly schedule and revising every evening. By December he felt completely at home.

1	B	A roommate is a person who shares your room.
2	A	A deadline is the last date for finishing work, so late work loses marks.
3	C	Regulations are official rules, such as no cooking in the rooms.
4	C	The student community is the group of students who live and study together.
5	B	'Manage your time' is the correct collocation.

Part 2 · Grammar (2 marks each)

Last April I joined a two-week exchange programme and stayed with a family in Salalah. When I arrived at the airport, I asked an officer (1) where I could find my host family. He smiled and pointed to the exit, where Talal and his father were waiting with a sign. At first I could not understand much, but now I (2) can order food in the local dialect without any help. Talal taught me a new phrase every morning. On Friday we visited a market (3) which sells fresh frankincense and spices, and I bought small gifts for my family. Talal's mother cooked for us every day. (4) As a result, I ate much more than I do at home! In the afternoons I enjoyed (5) playing football with Talal's cousins on the beach, even though the sand was hot. When it was time to leave, I felt sad, because I had made real friends. We still send each other messages every week, and Talal will visit Abu Dhabi next summer.

Lesson Objectives

1	A	Indirect questions use statement word order: where I could find.
2	B	'can' + verb expresses present ability.
3	C	'which' is the relative pronoun for a thing (a market).
4	A	'As a result' shows the effect of the mother cooking every day.
5	B	'enjoy' is followed by the -ing form.

Part 3A · Reading (3 marks each)

#	Skill	Answer	Why
1	Specific	A In January 2024	The scheme began in January 2024.
2	Detail	A Many students were arriving late because of traffic	He noticed that many students arrived late because of the traffic.
3	Inference	C Given freely as a gift	Parents and shops gave the bicycles to the scheme for free.
4	Specific	B Nine	Today there are more than ninety bicycles and nine stations.
5	Specific	A Thirty minutes	The first thirty minutes are free.
6	Specific	B Every Sunday	Volunteers check them every Sunday.
7	Detail	C They have fallen by nearly a fifth	Car journeys have fallen by almost a fifth.
8	Overall	B A neighbourhood scheme that shares bicycles and its benefits	The text describes the bicycle-sharing scheme and what it has achieved.

Part 3B · Reading (2 marks each)

#	Skill	Answer	Why
1	Detail	B It lets air move around the skin	Loose cotton allows air to circulate around the body.
2	Inference	C Completely full	Air that is saturated with vapour cannot hold any more water, so sweat dries slowly.
3	Detail	B Sweat evaporates slowly, so the body cools down less well	In humid air sweat evaporates slowly, so cooling is harder.
4	Detail	A Move them into the shade and cool them quickly	The victim must be moved into the shade and cooled promptly.

Part 4 · Writing: model answers

Text: “My winter trip to Jebel Jais” from Mansour

Task 1.1 model (15 marks)

Mansour is writing to tell Jasim about a family trip to Jebel Jais last winter. They were walking on the mountain road when thick fog covered everything, so they had to stay together and drive slowly until the sky cleared. Mansour thinks winter is the best season because he can stay outside all day, while in summer people must stay indoors at noon. He asks Jasim which season he prefers.

Task 1.2 model (25 marks)

In my opinion, winter is a better season than summer in the UAE, although both have good points.

First, I have a very happy memory of winter. Last January, I was camping in Hatta with my cousins when thick fog covered the mountains. We felt excited and a little nervous, but our uncle stayed calm and told us a story while we were drinking hot tea. After that, the sky cleared and the view was amazing.

Moreover, winter is more comfortable for outdoor activities. For example, we can play football, ride bikes or go to the beach at any time of the day without feeling exhausted. In contrast, the summer climate is much hotter and more humid, so people have to stay indoors until the evening.

However, every season has risks, so people must take care. In summer, everyone must drink plenty of water and wear light clothes because a high temperature can be hazardous. In winter, drivers should slow down when there is fog for the sake of safety.

To sum up, I prefer winter, but I believe that people who follow the rules can enjoy every season.

Why this earns top marks

- It answers all three prompts (task completion).
- Each paragraph has a topic sentence, then reasons or examples (structure).
- It uses linking words and a range of complex sentences (grammar).
- It uses topic vocabulary from the unit (vocabulary).
- Spelling and punctuation are correct (spelling and punctuation).
